Common Speakers Who Give Speech at Wedding

Wedding speeches are typically given by several key individuals closely connected to the bride and groom. These speeches serve to honor the couple, share personal stories, and celebrate the union. Knowing who gives speech at wedding is essential for planning the reception program.

The Father of the Bride

The father of the bride traditionally gives one of the first speeches at the wedding reception. This speech often includes welcoming guests, expressing pride and joy for his daughter, and offering blessings and advice to the newlyweds.

The Groom

The groom usually follows with a speech that thanks everyone for attending, acknowledges the bride, and expresses his feelings about the marriage. The groom's speech is often heartfelt and personal, reflecting his love and commitment.

The Best Man

The best man's speech is a wedding staple. Known for combining humor with sincerity, the best man typically shares anecdotes about the groom, praises the couple's relationship, and proposes a toast to their happiness.

The Maid of Honor or Matron of Honor

The maid of honor or matron of honor often delivers a speech highlighting the bride's qualities and their friendship. This speech is usually emotional and supportive, celebrating the bride's journey and the couple's future.

Other Possible Speakers

In some weddings, additional speeches may come from:

- The mother of the bride or groom
- The couple themselves, jointly or separately
- Close friends or relatives who have been given the honor
- The officiant, sometimes sharing personal insights or blessings

The Order of Wedding Speeches

The sequence in which speeches are delivered at a wedding reception is traditionally set to maintain flow and engagement. Knowing the typical order helps guests anticipate and enjoy each moment.

Traditional Speech Order

A conventional order of speeches at a wedding is as follows:

1. Father of the bride welcomes guests and offers his speech

2. The groom responds with his speech
3. The best man delivers his speech
4. The maid or matron of honor gives her speech
5. Additional speeches if applicable

Modern Variations

Some couples customize the order to fit their preferences or cultural traditions. For example, sometimes the couple speaks first, or speeches are interspersed with other reception activities.

Content and Tone of Wedding Speeches

The content and tone of wedding speeches should reflect the celebratory nature of the event while remaining respectful and appropriate for all ages.

Key Elements of Wedding Speeches

Effective wedding speeches often include:

- Warm greetings and thanks to guests
- Personal anecdotes about the bride, groom, or couple
- Expressions of love and support
- Best wishes for the couple's future
- A closing toast or cheer

Tone and Style

The tone can vary from humorous and lighthearted to sincere and emotional. It is important to avoid controversial or inappropriate topics, ensuring that the speech is inclusive and enjoyable for all attendees.

Etiquette and Tips for Wedding Speeches

Proper etiquette enhances the impact of wedding speeches and ensures that they contribute positively to the celebration.

Preparation and Practice

Speakers should prepare their speeches in advance and rehearse to maintain confidence and clarity. Keeping speeches concise—usually between three to five minutes—is advisable to hold guests' attention.

Respecting the Audience

Speeches should be considerate of the diverse audience, avoiding inside jokes or stories that might exclude or embarrass guests. Using inclusive language and positive messages is key.

Delivery Tips

Speakers should speak clearly, maintain eye contact, and use natural gestures. Pausing for laughter or applause helps maintain engagement.

Variations in Wedding Speech Traditions

Wedding speech customs vary by culture, religion, and personal preferences. Understanding these differences can help tailor speeches appropriately.

Cultural Differences

In some cultures, additional speakers such as elders or community leaders may give speeches. In others, speeches might be more formal or follow specific rituals.

who gives speech at wedding: Wedding Speeches - a Practical Guide for Delivering an Unforgettable Wedding Speech Sam Siv, 2014-09-02 A Practical Guide for Delivering an Unforgettable Wedding Speech Your wedding day should be the most important day of your life. It is the day when all your friends and family, as well as the friends and family of your husband-to-be, gather together to celebrate your big day. Unless you are lucky enough to be able to afford a wedding planner, you will have so many things to think about and plan, from the pre-wedding parties to the wedding ceremony and reception, and even the honeymoon. As part of your wedding day, it is expected that certain people in your wedding party give speeches to congratulate you on your newly married status and also to tell a few stories about you and the groom. To a certain extent, you don't need to worry about this aspect of the wedding, unless you intend to make a speech yourself. However, you will want to have an input into who makes the speeches and how long they are because this will have a roll-on effect on everything else that happens at your wedding reception. Who gives the speeches and toasts at your wedding really depends on what you want. It is traditional for the male side of the wedding party only to give speeches. You may even want to cut this down further and just ask the best man and groom to give a speech. Then again, you may want to laugh in the face of tradition and make sure the female side of the wedding party, including yourself, have the chance to say something. Of course, you will need to check with everyone that they are happy to give a speech. The groom and best man probably won't have much choice, but others may prefer to stay quiet and simply listen to what the main members of the wedding party have to say.
